2. Policy Publication Tool

Following an evaluation of Promapp as an alternative policy publication tool, the University has decided to continue to use the Melbourne Policy Library for policy publication. (Note that the business case to implement Promapp for process mapping and management across the University has been endorsed and further information will be provided in the next Bulletin.)

Over the next couple of weeks Legal and Risk will migrate new policies published in Promapp back into the Melbourne Policy Library. A list of new policies will continue to be maintained on the Melbourne Policy Framework web page to aide in easy identification of new policies from ‘old’ policies and procedures, until the Policy Consolidation Project is complete.

Please direct any questions about the Melbourne Policy Library or the Policy Consolidation Project to policy-help@unimelb.edu.au.
